Is our Government Inept, or Corrupt?

While I was writing this book, many people complained to me that our government merely appears to be involved in the September 11th attack because they are incompetent. So I decided to include information about the assassination of President Kennedy to show that our government was just as “incompetent” in 1963. Or, did our government kill Kennedy? Can you figure it out by looking at the Warren Report? Furthermore, if our government is incompetent, how is an incompetent government any better than a government of criminals? Either way, we have a serious problem.

The Warren Report

The “Warren Report” is the US government’s official investigation of the assassination of President Kennedy. It is analogous to the FEMA report about the World Trade Center collapse, but the Warren Report has much more detail. It contains the testimony of 552 witnesses, and it contains our government’s analysis of that testimony. A lot of people put a lot of time and effort into the Warren Report.

As is typical of crimes, the testimony in the Warren Report is full of contradictions. The government had to pass judgement on which testimony was the most accurate, and which testimony should be ignored. They ended up concluding that Oswald killed Kennedy. However, some people looked at the same conflicting testimony, decided to ignore different bits, and ended up concluding the FBI killed Kennedy. Other people ignored still other bits and found a military or CIA killing. Some people found a Soviet killing. How do we determine whose theory is more accurate?

This chapter will discuss the testimony of the doctors who treated Kennedy at the hospital. (Unless specified otherwise, the quoted material is from the Warren Report.)

Who was on duty at the Parkland Hospital?

The hospital was only a few miles from the location Kennedy was shot, so he arrived within a few minutes. The Warren Report does not provide details about what was happening at the hospital at the moment Kennedy arrived, but we can assume that most experienced doctors were busy with patients. Some doctors may have been in surgery and could not stop what they were doing. Who were the first doctors to see Kennedy? Were they the best doctors the hospital had? Or were the trainees the first to see him?

In case some of you are unaware of what goes on in hospitals, after a medical student gets out of school he often gets on-the-job training at a hospital. These students are often referred to as “interns,” and sometimes as “doctors,” but they could be referred to as “trainees” or “students.” Also, in 1963 there were fewer concerns about malpractice because Americans did not file nearly as many lawsuits in that era, and monetary awards were much smaller. One of the reasons malpractice cases have since become so numerous is that there were occasional abuses in that era, such as when nurses, interns, and medical equipment salesmen assisted with medical treatments when the doctors were busy. Today hospitals are careful not to allow anybody to do something they were not specifically trained for.

As you read about the treatment Kennedy received, try to figure out if the first few doctors to help him were experienced doctors or just students. It is also interesting to speculate on how many lawsuits would be filed if a hospital behaved in the same manner today.

The potential danger in letting a student or a salesman treat Kennedy is that he may be familiar with only a few treatments, so he could easily give Kennedy an inappropriate treatment simply because it is the only treatment he has learned. And a salesman may be familiar only with the equipment he sells.

The bullet hole in his neck was widened to give him oxygen.

Doctor Carrico was the first to arrive

As the Warren Report explains, Doctor Carrico noted that Kennedy had some serious medical problems:

Dr. Carrico noted two wounds: a small bullet wound in the front lower neck, and an extensive wound in the President's head where a sizable portion of the skull was missing. He observed shredded brain tissue and "considerable slow oozing" from the latter wound, ...

In Appendix 8 we find more details:

Dr. Carrico noted the President to have slow, agonal respiratory efforts. He could hear a heartbeat but found no pulse or blood pressure to be present.

People such as myself, who lack medical training, would assume the lack of pulse and blood pressure means that Kennedy's heart was not beating, which in turn means there was only a few minutes before irreversible brain damage occurs. Since I don't know how to start a heart beating, if I had to deal with Kennedy I would have given up and announced that Kennedy was dead. But Dr. Carrico did not consider him dead yet:

He noted that the President was blue-white or ashen in color; had slow, spasmodic, agonal respiration without any coordination; made no voluntary movements; had his eyes open with the pupils dilated without any reaction to light; evidenced no palpable pulse; and had a few chest sounds which were thought to be heart beats. On the basis of these findings, Dr. Carrico concluded that President Kennedy was still alive.

Doctor Carrico had a plan to treat Kennedy and bring him back to good health. He decided to use the bullet hole in his neck to help him breathe. The plan was to widen the bullet hole, insert a tube in the hole, and connect it to a machine that forces oxygen into Kennedy's lungs. This procedure is known as a "tracheotomy."

Doctor Carrico started this tracheotomy almost immediately after seeing Kennedy. Soon afterwards Doctor Perry arrived and took over the tracheotomy while Carrico started other treatments.

I never had any medical training, so perhaps that is why I don't understand the purpose of the tracheotomy. Specifically, why put oxygen into his lungs when his heart is not circulating the blood? Was it because these doctors had no idea what to do about a failed heart, so they did what they knew and hoped that soon a heart specialist would arrive?

And why did these two doctors ignore the bullet wound in Kennedy's head? Was it because brain problems are even more complex than heart problems, and neither of these doctors had a clue as to what to do with the head wounds?

Even with my lack of medical training I can figure out how to force air into a person's lungs, but I don't know how to start a heart beating, and I have no idea how to deal with head injuries. Maybe these two doctors were as inept as me. Maybe they were not real doctors; maybe they were salesmen for tracheotomy equipment, or maybe they were students. Maybe the oxygen tank was the only device they knew how to use!

The doctors told the Warren commission that the tracheotomy required 3 to 5 minutes. This is plenty of time for the doctors to ask themselves why they bother to force oxygen into his stagnant blood.

Doctor Jones soon arrived to help with the medical treatment:

While Dr. Perry was performing the tracheotomy, Drs. Carrico and Ronald Jones made cuts down on the President's right leg and left arm, respectively, to infuse blood and fluids into the circulatory system. Dr. Carrico treated the President's known adrenal insufficiency by administering hydrocortisone.

So, just in case a heart specialist arrives in time to start his heart beating, the oxygen, hydrocortisone, and other fluids these doctors were forcing into his stagnant blood would begin to circulate. However their testimony never indicates that they called for a heart specialist. Furthermore, with a "sizeable portion" of his skull missing, if his heart started beating again, wouldn't his blood just pour out of his head and onto the floor? Shouldn't the doctors close the hole soon? Or did they not know how to do that, either?

A fourth doctor soon arrived:

Dr. Robert N. McClelland entered at that point and assisted Dr. Perry with the tracheotomy

So now we discover that three Dallas doctors are needed to give a dead man a tracheotomy. Is this typical for a tracheotomy? Or were these doctors incompetent? As I was reading the Warren Report, I was visualizing college students who were anxious to help:

"Come on, you guys! It's my turn to do something! Move over! I just got here; you've already done a lot of stuff! I wanna help!"

Anyway, Kennedy now has four doctors giving him injections and oxygen. Unfortunately, Doctor Perry told the Warren Commission that air and blood got into Kennedy's chest, and he suspects it was because they goofed on the tracheotomy!

How difficult is a tracheotomy? Then ask yourself, if they cannot perform a tracheotomy, how could they do something complicated, such as getting his heart to beat?

Doctor Perry decided to correct the problems they caused with their lousy tracheotomy by putting a few more holes and tubes into Kennedy:

When Dr. Perry noted free air and blood in the President's chest cavity, he asked that chest tubes be inserted to allow for drainage of blood and air. Drs. Paul C. Peters and Charles R. Baxter initiated these procedures

So these other two doctors had to insert drainage tubes to undo the damage caused by the tracheotomy. It seems to me that these doctors were incompetent. Was this the first tracheotomy these doctors had performed? As I read this section of the Warren Report, I was getting visions of students who had never performed such work:

Carrico: "Oh, hi doc Perry! Look what I'm doing! I'm giving the President a trakyotomy... um, trikatomy..uh.."

Perry: "A tracheotomy?"

Carrico: "Yeah! You wanna finish it?"

Perry: "Sure! I always wanted to try that!"

McClelland: "Hi guys. Hey! Let me help! What are you doing?"

Perry: "It's called a tracheotomy. You can take that knife and cut this hole a bit bigger so I can cram this tube down his throat."

(A few moments later...)

McClelland: "Oops! When I turned on the oxygen, it went into his chest cavity instead of his lungs!"

Peters: "Hey! I'll take care of that! Move over!"

Baxter: "No, that aint how to fix it! Look, just insert a drainage tube by his ribs, over here!"

While those incompetent doctors were making Kennedy's situation worse, Doctor Clark arrived and gave Kennedy a "closed chest cardiac massage" in order to start his heart beating. He was the first doctor to work on Kennedy's heart. Maybe the real doctors were finally starting to arrive!

Unfortunately, Doctor Clark discovered that his life-saving procedure had an unfortunate side effect, as Doctor Jenkins told the Warren Commission:

.. with each compression of the chest, there was a great rush of blood from the skull wound.

Well, golly! I guess the bullet holes and missing skull portions should be sealed off before somebody starts pumping blood. Did any of the doctors complain to Doctor Clark about the "great rush of blood"? Once again I found myself with visions of immature students:

Clark: "Hey, guys! Check this out! I'll get his heart to beat!"

(He starts pumping Kennedy's chest)

Jenkins: "You idiot! Blood is squirting all over! Quit it!"

Clark: "Hey, don't criticize! I don't tell you how to... uh, whatever you're doing with that stupid, plastic tube."

Soon more doctors arrived, and more treatments were given. Kennedy was surrounded by doctors; they must have resembled ants around a drop of honey. But would you say these doctors were helping Kennedy, or making his situation worse? Furthermore, if the Parkland Hospital treats the President in this manner, what would they do to you or me? The doctors obviously didn't worry about malpractice in 1963. The doctors gave Kennedy what could be described as:

The Medical Treatment From Hell; If You Live Thru It, You'll Be Sorry!

Actually, it seems the doctors were following a script from a Hollywood horror movie. What was going on at this hospital?

Stress can cause idiotic behavior

Jackie Kennedy climbed on the trunk of the car and started crawling towards the back of the car after the bullet hit her husband in the head. The car was moving at the time, and starting to accelerate, so she risked falling off. To make the situation more bizarre, she insisted that she didn't remember doing it (photos prove she did), which means the event was never recorded in her memory! She can be considered proof that a person can behave in a strange manner under stress, and then not have any memory of it! She is a good example of how unreliable the human mind is under stress.

Therefore, maybe all of the doctors "flipped out" when they saw their dead President. Rather than face the fact that Kennedy was dead, perhaps these doctors went into some sort of "medical denial" mode in which they assured themselves that their patient will be OK despite evidence to the contrary. Maybe the doctors were in a "temporary state of medical insanity."

Or were the doctors so accustomed to performing unnecessary surgery in order to boost their income that they just couldn't stop themselves?

Alive for a “medical purpose”?

The Warren Commission asked the doctors about their treatments and the condition of Kennedy. Doctor Perry testified that when he first saw Kennedy:

He was, therefore alive for medical purposes

A cadaver has a medical purpose. For example, we can give a cadaver a tracheotomy and a shot of hydrocortisone, and in so doing we can learn how to perform those operations. But we cannot get the heart of a cadaver to beat, nor can we fix the brain of a cadaver, so students cannot practice those techniques on cadavers. Perhaps the first doctors to see Kennedy were students, and perhaps they gave Kennedy the only treatments they had practiced on cadavers. This would explain why, when the real doctors finally arrived, Kennedy was full of holes, hydrocortisone, and bubbles of oxygen.

Or does being alive for a “medical purpose” mean that money can be made from the patient? Did those doctors get paid for their treatment of Kennedy? Maybe they knew Kennedy was dead, so they decided to take advantage of the situation by performing quick and simple procedures that would bring them a lot of profit in a short period of time.

So...were they students? Or doctors?

Doctor Perry was asked by the Warren Commission whether he had any experience treating gunshot wounds. I was wondering the same thing as I read the Warren Report! Also, I was wondering about his age. I was visualizing a college kid. I was expecting Perry to respond to the question with something like:

“Well, I got a B+ on my last quiz about treating deep wounds!”

I was shocked to read that Doctor Perry estimated that he had already treated 150 to 200 gunshot wounds. Some of the other doctors claimed to have treated even more gunshot victims than Perry.†

Apparently the hospital sent only highly experienced doctors to treat Kennedy. But if all of the doctors were experienced, how do we explain their idiotic treatments?

† How could a society have so many gunshot victims that a doctor can treat hundreds of victims during a few years? Is America a nation or a war zone?

Did the doctors even want to help Kennedy?

Doctor Perry's testimony suggests that the doctors had no interest in helping Kennedy. Here is just one of his remarks:

Mr. Specter: Why was it, Dr. Perry, that there was no effort made to examine the clothing of President Kennedy and no effort to turn him over and examine the back of the President?

Dr. Perry: At the termination of the procedure and after we had determined that Mr. Kennedy had expired, I cannot speak for the others but as for myself, my work was done. I fought a losing battle, and I actually obviously, having seen a lot of wounds, had no morbid curiosity, and actually was rather anxious to leave the room. I had nothing further to offer.

Perry rushed in the room, assisted a sloppy tracheotomy, and was “rather anxious” to leave. Was this just another boring, gunshot victim? Was the doctor concerned about missing his golf appointment?

Whereas Perry was anxious to get out of the room, Doctor Jenkins described the attitude of the doctors as:

...those in attendance who were there just sort of melted away, well, I guess “melted” is the wrong word, but we felt like we were intruders and left.

The doctors were treating Kennedy in their hospital. Why would doctors feel like intruders while trying to save their President's life in their own hospital? Who were they intruding on? Was somebody in the room with them to make them uncomfortable? Was the FBI or CIA bothering them?

The doctors also ignored (or avoided) Jackie Kennedy. Here is a remark from Doctor Perry when he was asked about her:

I was informed subsequently that Mrs. Kennedy left the room several times to just outside the door but returned although as I say, I saw her several times in the room. I did not speak to her nor she to me so I do not have any knowledge as to exactly what she was doing.

Later in the interview he was asked for more details:

Mr. Specter: Where was Mrs. Kennedy, if you know, during the course of the treatment which you have described that you performed?

Dr. Perry: I had the initial impression she was in the room most of the time although I have been corrected on this. When I entered the room she was standing by the door, rather kneeling by the door, and someone was standing there beside her. I saw her several times during the course of the resuscitative measures, when I would look up from the operative field to secure an instrument from the nearby tray.

Is it common for a doctor to ignore the president's wife during such a tragedy? Did any of the doctors even say "Hello" to her? Or did all the doctors behave like Perry; i.e., rush in, perform a few sloppy medical procedures of no value, and then rush out? Is this standard hospital treatment in Texas? Is this what is referred to as "Southern Hospitality"? Furthermore, if this is how Southern Doctors treat the President, how do they treat people of other races?

How serious was the head wound?

Kennedy had a wound in his head, but it was not visible from certain directions. Also, Kennedy had a lot of hair, and the hair partially covered the wound. His hair was full of blood, but the doctors did not consider it serious enough to bother looking closely at his head. Nor did they turn Kennedy over to see the back of his head or the back of his body.

Is it really possible that experienced doctors would ignore bloody hair? Would a real doctor give a patient a tracheotomy and injections of hydrocortisone without first looking at his bloody head? Don't real doctors examine a patient before making a decision on the treatment? Or was the head wound just a tiny scratch that could be ignored?

The autopsy report has fancy medical terminology that makes it difficult to understand exactly what the head wound looked like:

There is a large irregular defect of the scalp and skull on the right involving chiefly the parietal bone but extending somewhat into the temporal and occipital regions. In this region there is an actual absence of scalp and bone producing a defect which measures approximately 13 cm. in greatest diameter.

A more understandable description of the wound comes from Clinton Hill, a Secret Service agent. He climbed into Kennedy's car after the shooting and rode to the hospital with them. His description of Kennedy's head wound:

Mr. Specter: What did you observe as to President Kennedy's condition on arrival at the hospital?

Mr. Hill: The right rear portion of his head was missing. It was lying in the rear seat of the car. His brain was exposed. There was blood and bits of brain all over the entire rear portion of the car. Mrs. Kennedy was completely covered with blood. There was so much blood you could not tell if there had been any other wound or not, except for the one large gaping wound in the right rear portion of the head.

How obvious does the JFK scam have to be?

When I first began reading the Warren Report, I was visualizing immature college students who were trying to behave as doctors. I was shocked by their behavior. But when I discovered the doctors were adults with many years of experience, I realized that the only way to explain the insane medical treatment is that the doctors were removing bullets and/or converting bullet holes to "treatment holes." The hole in Kennedy's neck was not to help him breathe.

The testimony from the doctors is enough to convince me that our government, hospitals, police, and media were involved in the Kennedy killing. The rest of Warren Report makes the conspiracy even more obvious.

Even the world's most incompetent medical student who failed every medical course would have immediately realized that Kennedy was hopelessly dead when he saw brains "oozing" out of a hole that was 13 cm wide.

Actually, I suspect that some of the more intelligent doctors would have deduced that Kennedy was dead when they realized – as Clinton Hill described it:

"There was blood and bits of brain all over the entire rear portion of the car."

Or how about his remark:

"The right rear portion of his head was missing. It was lying in the rear seat of the car."

While some people might insist that the goofy behavior of the doctors was due to stress, these doctors had seen hundreds of gunshot victims and other medical problems. Certainly every doctor knew that Kennedy was dead the moment they saw what the Warren Report described as "shredded brain tissue." Their idiotic treatment of Kennedy was merely to cover the signs that there was more than one sniper.

The doctors never turned Kennedy over or looked closely at his head because the rear of his head was in the car. A portion was also in the road (a piece of skull was found the next day). Note that Figure 11-1 does not show the left, rear of his head. I cannot find any photo that shows the hole. Also, the photo is abnormally low quality, as if somebody wanted to hide the details and holes.

How could people in 1963 not realize the killing was a scam? Was the information suppressed so well that most people never knew what actually happened? Did the media in 1963 lie about the killing as much as they lie about the 9-11 attack? Were there millions of "patriots" who demanded blind obedience to President Johnson, just as there are millions today who demand we obey Bush? Were people ridiculed as “conspiracy nuts” for suggesting the killing was a scam, just as people today are ridiculed for pointing out that the 9-11 attack was a scam?

How obvious does the Kennedy scam have to be before the American patriots stop calling us “conspiracy nuts” and face the fact that America is incredibly corrupt? What if the doctors had asked Clinton Hill to scoop up the bits of brain in the car so they could stuff it back into Kennedy’s head? Or what if the doctors asked Jackie Kennedy to scrape the brains off her dress so they could put it back in his head? How about if the doctors were laughing as they asked for the bits of brains? How absurd would the medical treatment have to be in order for our society to correct the lies in our history books and admit that the killing was a scam?

“Partial death” murders (or “late-term” murders)

What would have happened if the bullets had only wounded Kennedy. A wounded Kennedy would create the same problem that occurs with “partial birth abortions.” Would the government allow Kennedy to live after going to this much trouble to kill him? I doubt it. Rather, the doctors would kill Kennedy and pretend that he died despite their best efforts.

Maybe the doctors were relieved when they saw the hole in Kennedy’s head because maybe they didn’t want to kill him. However, it is also possible that the doctors were hoping he would come in alive so that they could kill him. This would explain their lack of enthusiasm. Their behavior suggests boredom and disappointment. Since Kennedy was dead by the time the doctors arrived, the doctors had nothing to do except the boring work of removing bullets.

Is the Dallas hospital a CIA testing center?

Years ago I heard rumors that the CIA developed killing techniques that make it difficult to determine the cause of death. How would the CIA know if their killing techniques were difficult to detect unless some doctors inspected the victims and gave the CIA a report? Wouldn’t the CIA have to kill people and then let doctors inspect the bodies?

Maybe some of the doctors who “treated” Kennedy were the doctors who would send reports to the CIA about their LSD and other experiments.

Doctor Perry was one of the doctors who “treated” Oswald after Jack Ruby shot him. The Warren Report claims that Oswald died from that little bullet. Doctor Perry told the commission that when Oswald arrived at the hospital he was unconscious and blue from lack of oxygen. He said the bullet tore some of Oswald’s major arteries. However, since the doctors lied about Kennedy, why should we believe their reports about Oswald? For all we know, the doctors tore Oswald’s arteries, and during the ride to the hospital an FBI agent may have choked him until he was blue and unconscious.

The Southwest hate capital of Dixie

An interesting paragraph from the Warren Report about the people in Dallas:

Increased concern about the President’s visit was aroused by the incident involving the US Ambassador to the United Nations, Adlai E. Stevenson. On the evening of October 24, 1963, after addressing a meeting in Dallas, Stevenson was jeered, jostled, and spat upon by hostile demonstrators outside the Dallas Memorial Auditorium Theater. The local, national, and international reaction to this incident evoked from Dallas officials and newspapers strong condemnations of the demonstrators. Mayor Earle Cabell called on the city to redeem itself during President Kennedy’s visit. He asserted that Dallas had shed its reputation of the twenties as the “Southwest hate capital of Dixie.”

After reading about the doctors who “treated” Kennedy, I think Dallas was premature in shedding its reputation as “Southwest hate capital of Dixie.” Incidentally, why doesn’t the USA have any “Love Capitals” or “Honesty Capitals”?

Why do people believe Oswald acted alone?

The killing occurred 40 years ago, and it is painfully obvious that the killing was a scam, so why do millions of Americans insist that Oswald acted alone?

Furthermore, the killing is a significant scandal in American history, but our schools do not teach us about this scandal. Why not? Does our government influence school textbooks, as we condemn the Russian government for doing?

The World Book Encyclopedia that I grew up with, published in 1965, lies about the killing. For just one example:

Doctors worked desperately to save the President, but he died at 1pm.

In reality, Kennedy was shot in the head at about 12:30, and he died instantly. The doctors did indeed work desperately, but only to remove evidence of the snipers.

The article was written by Eric Sevareid, a news reporter. His article should be used as evidence that reporters should not be allowed to write encyclopedia articles.

I checked the Internet for the latest version of the World Book Encyclopedia to see if the lies have been corrected, but that section of the article is still the same. Sean Wilentz, a history teacher at Princeton University, updated the article but did not remove the lies. Obviously, Princeton's history teachers should not be allowed to write encyclopedia articles, either.

I think the main reasons millions of people believe Oswald acted alone are:

- 1) Our government is so incompetent and the American people fight with each other so often that many of us find it difficult to believe that the government nitwits can get together for such a killing.
- 2) America's "free press" has been corrupted by money, political pressure, and who knows what else. This results in school textbooks and news reports that are full of lies about the killing, and information is suppressed. Our media keeps us ignorant and misinformed. Incidentally, Dan Rather (the TV news reporter) was a young reporter at the Kennedy killing. He was such a special person that he was supposedly the only news reporter allowed to view Zapruder's 8 millimeter film of the killing. But he lied in his news reports about what he saw in that film. Nobody noticed the lie because the film was hidden from the public until 1975 when Geraldo Rivera somehow got a copy and broadcast it on television. However, by 1975 nobody remembered or cared about Rather's 1963 report. Dan Rather was given a promotion shortly after the killing, and soon he became rich and famous. Coincidence?
- 3) Admitting the Kennedy killing was a scam is admitting America is a hypocritical, corrupt nation.

I did not realize the Kennedy killing was a scam until a few years ago. I suppose I picked up the "Oswald Acted Alone" theory from encyclopedias, school textbooks, and magazines. Somehow the issue of the Kennedy killing came up in a discussion I was having with an older relative who was an adult in 1963, and he mentioned that J. Edgar Hoover and other government officials killed Kennedy. I was surprised to hear him say this, and I defended the FBI. I could not believe top officials in the FBI were that corrupt.

He continued to talk about how dishonest Lyndon Johnson was, and how Earl Warren was a gullible fool who had been taken advantage of. He complained about other officials, as well, and mentioned that the CIA had ties to organized crime and Jimmy Hoffa.

I already knew that the Kennedy family was not one of America's best behaved families, but if I were to believe my relative, practically every high ranking member of the American government should be arrested for at least one serious crime. Furthermore, he implied some people on the Supreme Court are easily manipulated, and some of our unions and corporations are corrupt. I knew America had problems, but I could not believe America was as crummy as he was making it appear. I essentially told him: "Give me a break!"

I did to him what millions of Americans are doing to me today; namely, I resisted the possibility that America is incredibly corrupt. I preferred my fantasy in which the FBI was honest, just as most Americans are trying to live in a fantasy in which Americans are the Greatest People In The World and Osama is the source of our problems.

I discovered the Warren Report on the Internet a few months after I defended the FBI. As I read through it I realized that our government killed Kennedy. Actually, the killing is so obviously a scam that I felt like a fool for defending the FBI. From now on I will consider the FBI guilty until proven innocent.

What is "free" about our press?

The Kennedy and the 9-11 scams show that America's "free press" is a joke. The only thing "free" about our press is that government officials can freely manipulate it. Or perhaps wealthy people are free to manipulate journalists, as this man suggests:

The business of the journalist is to destroy the truth, to lie outright, to pervert, to vilify, to fawn at the feet of Mammon and to sell his country and his race for his daily bread. ... We are the tools and vassals of rich men behind the scenes. We are the jumping jacks, they pull the strings and we dance. ... We are intellectual prostitutes.

Those remarks are attributed to John Swinton, a New York journalist, in 1880. Did he really make those remarks? If so, was he serious? Do most journalists care more about money and/or fame than performing a useful service to society? Can the articles in the New York Times be controlled by money? If so, is the CIA using any of their secret budget to control the "intellectual prostitutes" today?

If the Kennedy killing was a scam, what else was?

After I published the first edition of this book, I was informed of the reports by such people as General Benton Partin. Partin calculated the pressure that would have resulted from Tim McVeigh's bomb (which supposedly destroyed the Murrah Building in Oklahoma City in 1995), and his calculations prove that a bomb of fuel oil and fertilizer exploding in the street could not do such extensive damage to the Murrah building. Unless somebody can show that Partin's calculations are incorrect, there is no need to investigate further – that attack was a scam also!

The FBI did not investigate the Oklahoma City bombing. Rather, the building was demolished and the rubble was quickly destroyed, just as with the 9-11 attack.

When I first heard of the arrest of McVeigh in 1995 I wondered why he was caught driving away in a rundown car that was missing its license plate. How could he be intelligent enough to create a powerful bomb but so stupid that he would drive away in a car that would attract the attention of the police? It seemed that somebody wanted the police to notice McVeigh. Partin and others explain why; namely, the attack was a scam, and McVeigh was a patsy.

Why do so few people know about Partin's report? Because our news reporters suppressed his report. The news reporters also gave us false information about McVeigh and the attack.

How obvious does the 9-11 scam have to be?

Only a small percentage of Americans believe the 9-11 attack was a scam. I think the main reasons most Americans believe Osama was behind the attack are:

- 1) It is difficult to believe that a group of people could be so violent and destructive as to fill the buildings with explosives. This is far beyond "normal" crimes. And they did this while thousands of people were working inside.
- 2) Such a scam would be so complex and expensive that only a government would have the resources to do it, but the American government seems too incompetent to succeed at such a complex scam, and not many Americans can handle the possibility that foreign governments are involved in these scams.
- 3) Our "free press" is corrupt. The news reporters are suppressing information and lying to us. The American Free Press is a national newspaper that discusses the 9-11 attack, and a few Internet sites (for example, public-action.com, and Serendipity.com) have been discussing it for months, but those people are never interviewed on television or put on the cover of Time magazine. The end result is that most Americans have been kept ignorant about the attack.
- 4) Most people are too ignorant about explosives, concrete, the demolition of buildings, and steel beams to be able to carry on an intelligent discussion about how the buildings collapsed.

For an amusing example, when I pointed out that Building 7 should not have collapsed from a small fire, a few people responded to me that they heard the fire created stress in the building. In other words, these people give human qualities to the building. I suppose those people would have sent psychiatrists to the buildings instead of firemen.

- 5) The people who promote the scam theory are individuals that nobody knows. We appear to be a group of oddballs, whereas the TV news reporters appear to be "official."
- 6) Admitting the attack was a scam is admitting America is an incredibly corrupt nation, possibly beyond anything the world has ever seen. I think this is the primary reason most Americans refuse to consider that the attack was a scam.

Most Americans are in denial

How obvious would the explosions in the World Trade Center have to be in order for the majority of Americans to face the possibility that the attack was a scam? What if colored explosives had been used, as in fireworks? Would that be obvious enough? Or would Scientific American and university professors publish idiotic theories about the cobalt, barium, and other exotic elements in the aircraft engines reacting with the magnetic strips on credit cards to create colored sparkles?

Before you can accept the possibility that the 9-11 attack belongs in the Guinness Book of World Records as The World's Most Incredible Scam, you must be willing to accept the possibility that America's government, universities, and media are corrupt beyond your wildest dreams. The people who insist that Americans are "The Greatest People In The World" will find it difficult to accept such a possibility.

How can we be the greatest people in the world when we consistently elect corrupt government officials? How can we boast about our honesty and our high morals when we allow one incredible scam after the next? How can we boast about our "Free Press" when it covers up colossal scams and lies to us to an extent that not even Pravda has been accused of? How can we boast about our universities when some professors are promoting false theories to deceive us, and other universities ignore the issue?
